

Properly preparing your home can be critical in achieving the best price in the shortest possible time. It can sometimes involve hard work and some expense but does result in clear cut benefits at sale time.

General There are some general considerations that will make your home more attractive to prospective buyers. These are the main ones.

Clear spaces and light: Your property will appear larger and more spacious if you make it a point to remove all clutter and unneeded items and furniture. This includes clearing bench tops, the inside of wardrobes and pathways. Pack or store anything you don't need prior to shifting. Make rooms as light as possible. Keep shades and curtains open during the day and have sufficient lighting at night.

Clean and tidy: Buyers are impressed if every room and every area of a property is clean and tidy. Further, they tend to think that if everything is clean and well cared for where they can see, it will be the same where they can't see. It is a lot of work but will increase the selling value of your home and save you heaps of cleaning time on shifting day.

Looking good outside: One of the major frustrations for sales consultants is, after having made an appointment to view a home that is likely to meet a buyer's requirements, that a person says that they don't want to look through the house - 'I don't like the way it looks from the outside'.

It's very difficult to overcome this type of initial reaction - a potential sale can be lost before the prospective buyer has even walked through the gateway.

Take a walk past your home from the opposite side of the street. Stop and take a critical look at the kind of view that a buyer would have as a first impression.

Drive - weeds or oil patches?

Paths - weeds?

Lawn - cut neatly, edged and weed free?

Garden - weed free? Bedding plants to add sparkle?

Roof - moss free, free of flaking paint?

Spouting - leak free, clean?

Shrubs and trees - trimmed?

Fencing - stained and in good repair?

And inside. Fresh is Best. Dogs are a person's best friend and cats are cute. But animals, like mildew, may diminish the clean, fresh presentation of your home. A well aired home will smell even better with a little assistance from a few judiciously placed bowls of potpourri.

Windows and drapes. On a clear day you can see forever, but only if the windows and sills are fresh and clean and will enhance that view. Once clean, it's a simple operation to wipe the condensation away in the morning.

Floor coverings. This could be a great time to consider the cleaning of carpets - not only do they look so much better, they also add to that feeling and smell of freshness. Vinyl, covered and wooden floors are easy to keep clean, especially if they're well polished.

Fireplaces Clean out all the ashes.

The garage. Time for a trip to the rubbish dump? A garage sale? Make sure that there is a place for everything and everything is in its place. Even the garage should look a part of the home that you love.

Redecoration. Even a small amount can make an enormous difference. A coat of paint to the front door or window sashes - perhaps some new wallpaper in the entrance hall.
